

1. An interactive microbreak system that automatically determines the user's fatigue state during computer use